THE GREAT SACANDAGA RESERVOIR

Located in the southern foothills of the Adirondack Mountains, the 29-mile-long Great Sacandaga Lake is the largest man-made body of water in New York State. The film tells the early history of the Sacandaga Valley and explains how the waters of the Sacandaga and Hudson Rivers flooded with run-off every spring damaging homes and businesses all the way to Albany. The film reveals how the people of the Sacandaga Valley had to sacrifice their homes, farms and livelihood to make way for the series of dams, bridges and roads, which were completed in March 1930 at a cost of $12 million.

DVDs of the film, produced by the Sacandaga Lake Advisory Council with support from Lauren Roberts, Jason Kemper and Peter Pepe, will be available for purchase at $20.

Capital Area Archivists of New York is the not-for-profit 501(c)(3) organization serving our region's archival community.
